For my family and our home

Everything about us needs to be better for us and by us.

Chapter One – The Heirs of BLUE

BLUE - a society in our society mean to keep saving our world. I reckon you have a lot to express about us but my family and I get it a lot. Praises, quips and criticism. When my dad told me everything I had to about my family's legacy, I wanted to get started right away. My soul told me to and for the first time in my life – I had to express a lot more than just what all of us get a lot. I had to prove that our ancestors started our society because our ancestors always had something that remained ancient.

The E Residence

1000 hours

My brothers, Bradley, Brian and Jeremy and I were in our back yard. All of us had to wait for our best friends. Aurora happened to be my long-term girlfriend. Eva and Nonny let the adventures with my brothers to open up a lot. Olga - my cousin – dated Jeremy. Yes. Him. The exact Jeremy I had known my entire life and that made sense. They spent a lot of time together and I didn't notice. After long bickering and worrying, all that faded away. I had gotten used to being in a secret society created by my family. Firstly – the society helped society. Corrected it. Lived in it. A lot could be said by us and that was not always listened to by us. We had more than enough and less greed through the arrival of each generation. Excs happened to be communication devices that have been created by us and for us. Ten in total. 8 within our side. 1 unknown with its whereabouts. One owned by Chris. He always loved being simple with his actions. Aurora and the others calmly stepped into our back yard and they had smiled on. They felt light and at their happiest. No crisis for them. I had a lot to think about. They rushed to us then hugs started happening.

"All of you have always been awesome." said Brian. They happened to get the pleasantries and the context. They noticed positive changes in our home.

"Our home keeps getting better." said Brian. All of us nodded. Aurora turned to me and held my hand.

"Thank you for everything." said Aurora. This was meant to be a time of fun and wonder. Yet. I got a message on my Excs. All of us did. It was Chris. I had to let it be known.

"Let's save our world." I said. Chris was not in danger. He was the danger. For the past 5 years, Chris had turned away from the ways from my family's world and wanted to change the world for his own gain. All of us went to the lab that got built for us. It happened to be the most frustrating and prolonged mission yet. It got to be a custom for us to get to see him and once in a while, he rebelled and attempted to end our world. He was cocky and that explained the messages sent to us. His plan got explained on arrival and I loved that about them. He was relentless but a big part of his old self remained. He wasn't numbed. We got why he ended up how he ended up and I admired seeing him get used to being who he is. All I hoped was for the opportunity to have enough conversations about his turn to villainy. In our labs, there were boards and back packs readied. The gear needed had to be placed on first then the back packs could be placed on. Our tech allowed our back packs to hover on our backs. They could latch on but my team got used to the revolutionary step forward. It was expensive but expected.

Beach Eimry

The location had a harbour. A clean one. All because of the people that spoke to our people. Chris was calibrating his missiles.

"I should have actually used them then told them about my plan." said Chris. His aid nodded at him a lot. Chris took everything seriously, His turn was serious but somehow, he was our goofball and that brought problems. Chris did not kill. He did harm but not to the point of actually killing someone. It was seemed as odd because all of us got trained to take a life when many more lives get threatened. He was still our Chris. He had just gotten better at thinking what he needs to do. What suffered? His timing and timed responses. He needed to get into a rhythm. A strict rhythm. At his best, he said nothing. Chris got how we were also dangerous. We were also getting better. We were also goofballs. He turned to the shore and saw locals arriving onto the beach.

"Crowds started arriving. This means that I can actually do what I want to do and get what I always wanted to have." said Chris then he turned to the direction towards the ocean and he saw eight individuals standing on hover boards. All looking right at him.

"Damn." he said. They were us. All of us had our helmets on and they concealed our faces. He actually did not know what to say. His calibration process needed time. My team and I floated and landed on the platform and held our boards.

My brothers and I removed our helmets. Chris removed his helmet and nodded at us. Chris had to rush to his escape ship and my team and I let him.

BLUE HQ

Our dad Lincorn happened to be the person who made it all happen. He had taken the reigns. He got used to them being entirely demanding. He went to his lab and saw all of us waiting for him while sipping our warm cups of coffee. He seemed happy to see us.

"My sons." said our dad.

"Dad." I said.

"Pops." added Brian.

"Blue." remarked Bradley. He went to us and my brothers and I gave him a hug. The rest of our team felt warmed by the entire interaction.

"Always good to see all of you. I am actually excited that you all got here." he said.

"Well...this needs to happen a lot. Procedure." I commented.

"Oh, you got a shortage of fuel for your boards?" he asked.

"Code 104." answered Aurora. He got it the reason for the presence in HQ.

"Shit." he said.

My brothers and I were seated with our dad in his office and he looked unhappy. He had to speak to us.

"Agents,

"He got away again." said my dad Lincoln.

"Walked away." I corrected. My dad remained silent.

"He always supports us." I remarked.

"Yeah?" he asked.

"He loves our cause and our legacies." I said.

"I always let Chris escape because he believes in his cause." I explained. They noticed their harshness in the exchange. My dad exhaled then waited first.

"Number of murders." he said. I got what he meant.

"Four this year. All of them had to happen to save us." I replied. He believed me.

"Endgame." he said.

"I can't tell you but it doesn't get to change our routines for our jogs in the morning." I replied. My dad noticed that I had a lot to say about him.

"What does he have to get to accomplish his goal?" he asked. I laid back onto the chair. The air got heavy.

"Us. He needs us." I said. My gauntlet started beeping.

"I have to get going but I promise to see you again at home today." I said kindly. My dad nodded at me then I got up and nodded at him then left.

Chapter 2

"My family started BLUE and I am a part of it." I said. I was confident. Roscoe turned to me and nodded a lot. That's all that he did.

"Murderers..." he remarked. I chuckled.

"Yeah, we get that a lot." I responded. His aid started to slowly reach their guns. I noticed this.

"I can just get what you created and bring you in." I said politely. His aid stopped moving. Roscoe was a reluctant man, his company was great. Too great and he shook hands with people that didn't really like people. Roscoe turned to his aid and they turned to him. He just sighed and turned to me.

"Let's negotiate." he said. I was growing weary.

"I am not here to negotiate. I am here to collect you and your invention. I thought about it and I am letting you draw oxygen. All of that can change and I am still going to get what I have to get." I said. I was getting angry. I was holding it back. Roscoe had to decide.

"That seems more fun, man." said Roscoe. His aid got their guns then I lifted Roscoe then threw him to them. They caught him then I slammed a button on my gauntlet and my entire collection of devices got activated and I placed on my helmet. I jumped to them and kicked Roscoe in the gut and started fighting the remaining aid.

"He is going to try and make a run for it." I said. Bradley placed on his helmet.

"In pursuit." commented Bradley. I got punched in the gut then the impact got calculated. It was painful. I was straining. Roscoe rushed through the front entrance and got into his sports car. Brian stepped on his hover board then flew right into the building with it. Bradley quickly scaled down the wall.

"I love you." I said. She turned to me and smiled

"You must be James Dregl." I said confidently. He chuckled then nodded and we shook hands.

"Yes. That's me." he confirmed.

"I thought you would be slightly taller." I commented.

"There is still a lot to see." he responded. I was a bit thrown off by that.

"I doubt that but it is good to finally see you and I hope we speak again soon." I said then kept walking. Murray, in hot waters, wanted to wind it all down.

"I am sorry about that, the kid's bravado exceeds a lot of things." he explained.

I was handed the painting and I turned to it then turned to Roger and nodded at him.

"Thank you. I have honoured my end of the bargain." I said to him. He had queries.

"Are you sure all of this was worth it?" he asked me. I yawned then nodded at him a lot.

"Oh, yeah. Totally. I am going to explain everything after I honour a promise." I said. Roger sensed my uneasiness.

"You seem tired, shaken." he said. I had to divert.

"Too much sex. Yep, coitus cuts my sleep short but hey, I am settling down with my long-time gal so the tiredness should fade away." I said somehow without being nervous.

"You are way too nervous right now, man." remarked Roger. I had to clarify a lot.

"This is not a set-up." I said.

"I trust you but you look tired." commented Roger.

Chapter 3

“The main villain spoke to me about my cause.” I said. Bradley kicked Kevin.

“You can be stopped by us.” I said. Bradley kicked Dregl.

“My brothers and I love our family and our powers.” I said.

“My brothers and I love everything about our legacies and our quips about them. Bradley, Brian, Jeremy and I rushed to Aurora, Eva, Nonny and Olga.

“My family loves our legacies.” I said. Bradley, Brian, Jeremy and I turned to Aurora, Eva, Nonny and Olga then nodded at them.

“I got used to stopping you.” I said. I blocked the main villain’s punch.

“I believe in you.” I said. Aurora and I kissed.

“My brothers always believe in me.” I said. Aurora and I hugged.

“I love being in at my home.” I said. I rushed to Bradley and Brian.

“Bradley, Brian and I have always been awesome.” I said. Aurora rushed to my brothers Bradley, Brian and I. me.

Chapter 4

"You have always been my best friends." I said. Aurora and I nodded at Bradley and Brian.

"I have always loved everything about my home." I said. Aurora nodded at Bradley and Brian.

"I agree with Bradley, Brian and Aurora." I said. Bradley, Brian and I nodded at Jeremy and Chris.

I held my bowl of cereal then went to the table and sat down with it. I ate a spoonful then wiped my nose.

"You can start telling me why you got here." I said. The footsteps stopped being lighter and a figure entered my room slowly. I kept eating while this was happening then activated my gauntlet.

"Hey. Nice to meet you." I said. I had to ask questions first and that determined his fate.

"Are you lost?" I asked. The figure had a mask on that seemingly had sensors.

"No." he said. He had a voice distortion device with him. I was meant to conclude the conversation.

"Return what you took and leave my home." I said. I kept eating and he didn't move at all. I turned to him and stared at him.

"You should start leaving then." I said.

"I am here because you have to die." he remarked.

"Join the line. It hasn't budged since the first guy queued." I responded. This territory brought all of my family's enemies to me. I had had enough home invasions to have my own protocol. I slowly got up and lasers started pointing at the figure.

"I am not letting you have any last words." I said. A barrage of guns fired at him and he managed to dove to the hallway. I rushed after him then punched him in the face. The figure drew his dagger and aimed for my eyes and I blocked it by crossing my arms and pressing them towards him. I kicked his knee then kicked him to the ground and his dagger was hurled away. I activated my jet tech. He got up and I grabbed him by his neck.

Chapter 5

"I want us to use Foer." I said. Bradley removed his helmet then Eva held his face.

Ashleigh nodded at Bradley.

"I agree with Bradley and Brian." I said. I nodded at Eva.

"I want us to get to our base and speak about Foer." I said.

"Foer exists and it contains ancient supernatural power." I explained. Aurora was concerned.

"Show us proof." she said.

"He told us everything about Foer's legacy." I said. Chris blocked Dregl's punch.

I switched on the projector in our briefing room. It showed photos of old transcriptions.

"These have been found in most parts of the world and they have existed for billions of years." I said. Bradley ran through a translation algorithm and nothing showed up.

"Was it a prank?" he asked.

"The inscriptions happen to be instructions." I said. This actually concerned me.

"To?" asked Aurora.

"To find it. Foer happens to be a relic from a much better time in history. The civilization that had it managed to put on a gun on each face on the world." I said.

"You have to help us stop Dregl." I said. Chris and I hugged.

BLUE happened to be my family's own secret society that I loved being a part of.

Chapter 6

"Our communications got compromised." remarked Bradley. I slowly removed my helmet then Aurora rushed to me and I held it then turned to her. We smiled. I gave it some thought.

"They used the rods to do so. They emit radiation that can suspend our communication devices. All of this is done at their hub. Their rods are interlinked too so they always pick up slack." I explained. He wanted us dead. It had to be the case.

"Let's regroup with Chris's team then come up with a plan of attack." I commanded.

"How much time do we need to do all of this?" asked Brian. I had to be honest with him.

"A day." I responded. Aurora saw calmness in me.

"That's a lot of time." she said.

"If we fail, we lose our world. I just want us to get it right and save it." I explained then started going through the journal.

"Brooklyn steps." said Brian.

"I don't know, I think more Connecticut steps." responded Jeremy.

"Wait, you are of German descent, right?" asked Nonny. Jeremy sighed deeply.

"I am sorry about what happened. I was never in any discussions or think tanks during the time." he said.

"No, not that. Can you speak good German? I have a contact but he gets speaks a lot of the language." she explained.

"What the Hell is good German? Is there bad German?" asked Eva.

"Read my mind." commented Jeremy. Olga had a lot to say.

"I am pretty sure bad German is when Jeremy starts speaking German." said Olga. He just turned to her and she mouthed "I am sorry" to him.

"How messy is he?" I asked.

"A solid 8." she said. I turned to Jeremy.

"We cannot back down if it doesn't go well." I said.

"I know. We need all of the help we can get. This is our world and it should survive our battle." responded Jeremy. I nodded at him. I had to trust him.

"Take us to him." I said.

Dregl's Home

Dregl got up from his seat then went to his lab after finishing his meal. He saw his team of scientists move around a lot. His head scientist, Enrique Jimenez went to him with digital charts that he started studying. He noticed a lot.

"The power of Foer can kill me." he said. Enrique nodded.

"It can't kill the brothers at all." said Enrique. He got worried.

"They died. If not, you have to sink everything." said Dregl.

"Our lab can get set up when we get there." responded Enrique.

Cha Building

1600 hours

He lived by a building that was beloved - Cha Building. I turned to the humble Samaritan and handed him money from my emergency stash. Hiking took a while. Our transport to the location actually saw our sense of urgency and got us to the building 12 minutes faster.

"He is here." said Nonny. I pulled out my Exc and called Chris with it. It took time but he answered.

"Chris..." I said. He remained silent at first.

"Brother." he said.

"All of us used our rescue pods to survive the attack. No casualties but this matter needs to be solved by our team." I explain. Chris believed that us escaping was never farfetched.

"Great. I knew that you guys could get through this. The problem with all of this is that your dad thinks I killed you all and therefore he wants me killed." said Chris. This all seemed correct.

"So why haven't you called him and explained everything?" asked Chris. It had to be said.

"I want my brothers and I to use our powers to stop Dregl." I said. Chris sensed that I was being serious. The negotiation started.

"Six crates. I get to have a word on how they get used." said Chris. I had a counter-offer.

"Twenty crates. You show us, my brothers and I speak about them and use one." I said. Chris had to cut things short.

"The world is at stake. You can use my entire supply. I am going to fend them off and get you some time to get here and then all of us go to my chambers." he said. That got awkward.

"No, escape." I said. Chris sighed and got up.

"I am going to send the location details after I am done." said Chris then the contact's aid stepped out and went to us.

"Got it." I said and the connection ended. I pocketed my Exc. I believed in him. Our best task force could kill him but I believe in his bravery. A lot had to be said about Chris. He remained our friend despite aligning himself in the dark forces. The head of the aid was looking at me and said nothing. Jeremy said something in German and he turned to him and walked right up to his face.

"What did you say?" I asked.

"It's not that offensive." he responded.

"I didn't ask that." I commented.

"I was trying to tell him that he reminds me of what happened to me." he explained.

"We might leave here in body bags. That's a possibility." I commented.

"Have faith." he said.

"That's exactly what's going to kill us."

"Think about it – I am getting bettering at this."

"Do not get better. Get it done." I said then Nonny went up to the leader and said their greeting. He responded and they hugged warmly. The word was "Tropics". It meant something that got explained. Nonny turned to us.

"All of us have to go see him. No Excs. No powers. Just us." said Nonny.

"No confiscations?" asked Eva.

"He trusts me and he wants to trust all of you." answered Nonny. This made sense. The aid led the way and Nonny led us. It was reserved. It had intense detailing that all of were allowed to not go through. We entered the executive elevator. That was their term for it. It closed.

Chris's Lair

Location unknown

Meanwhile, Chris didn't want to die. I didn't want him to die but for that to happen – he had to escape. He got placed on his gauntlet then rushed to his seeing room where he could see everything that was happening. The task force was battering through his defenders.

"They want my blood." said Chris. Grant turned to him.

"You are thinking of going to them and fighting them yourself." he remarked.

"I let Dregl steal my shipment. I let all of this happen but I can fix it by letting you lead my friends to what's rightfully theirs." he explained then turned to a sealed off area in the room. Grant remained worried.

"It's not fully ready but it can be used." said Grant.

"Get me into it." he replied.

Chapter 7

“My brothers and I always have our basketballs and Frisbees with us.” Jackson nodded at Cloe then Jeremy and I rushed into the room.

“Dregl wants us to go after him without BLUE teams because he believes he can stop us.” I said. Chris nodded at us.

“He wants to end all of this by ending all of you and letting your family move emotionally.” said Chris.

“That can’t happen. Our family stops wars. They do not start them.” remarked Brian. Olga seemed worried and very concerned.

“No word about our plan to them then. Let’s keep this to ourselves and end him now.” I said.

“Right now?” asked Bastian. I nodded at him.

“I have to let you get the smoke and mirrors while the rest of us get to him. He needs Foer and I want us to not let him touch it.” I explained. Aurora turned to the tracker.

“Bruce – the five-year is almost up.” she said. My droid was close to it and time got set.

“Forty three minutes from

Chapter 8

Brian punched Dregl then I removed my helmet then tackled him and both of us tumbled to the wall. Aurora rushed to Enrique then punched him and threw him right into the control panel. I started standing up.

“Hold. Give up.” I said then Dregl punched me right in the face and slammed my head onto the wall and blocked Jeremy’s punch. Aurora blocked Tessa’s punch then managed to put her in a sleeper hold. Eva placed her hands onto the control panel and started trying to locate Foer.

“Buy me time.” she said. Bradley blocked Charles’s kick then punched him.

“That’s what we are doing right now!” he shouted. Chris used his sword and easily subdued most of the henchmen in the space.

“He should get better aid.” said Chris then he got punched by one of them and he snatched his sword from him. He attempted to stab through him then

Chapter 9

Chapter 10

"You have a lot of power with you." I said anxiously.

"It belongs to me and I want you to tell your family to let me be." he responded.

"I was honestly hoping for a better back-and-forth." added Brian.

"He is right. Let's clinch our fists and get started on the fighting. All of us have our curfews to think about." stated Jeremy. I turned to Dregl.

"Last chance." I said to him warmly. He didn't budge.

I tumbled right into a wall then I fell down. Dregl was pleased. He started to access the Mourner qualities of Foer then he slowly started walking towards me.

"I have to fix my board after all of this." I said while slowly standing up.

"I think is over." responded Dregl.

"No. Us heroes have to be at our best." I said. I was confident in my speech. I had to be. Dregl wanted me dead because I wanted to stop him. I was not alone. My family managed to get reinforcements to the location and all I had to do was get the Foer from Dregl then end his run.

"This is personal but I do not hate you. I believe your family goes unchecked." explained Dregl.

"I honestly thought it was because I am Black." I teased. Dregl started channelling power to his left hand.

"I am sorry and I hope the Higher Power helps you after I end you." he confessed. He stretched his hand towards me then I started scaling the wall behind me. A gust of power flew right to me. I activated Dead Lock then I got hit by it, hurling right back into the field with my damaged armour that I relied on. I was in aching pain.

"Yep. This is how I die." I said to myself. Dregl started channelling power to his right arm then Aurora rushed to him and tackled him. I slowly started getting up. Aurora tripped him then I removed my helmet and dropped it. I was bleeding. I wore my mouth guard then started to march to Dregl. I pressed a lot of buttons on my gauntlet. I was setting up something that could help my team. Dregl grabbed Aurora by her neck.

"No." I commanded. I stopped marching.

"You have no say." said Dregl. I kept quiet.

"You want to know why Foer was buried and not just placed in a lab?" I asked. He was confused. Aurora wrangled out of his arm after hitting it then I fired a focus blast right to Foer. It soaked it all in then Dregl felt heavier than usual.

"It drowns all other forms of power. The problem is that the kind of power I use never sinks." I said then he tried to get up and manages it.

"My body can handle it until it is used up." responded Dregl.

"And your mind?" I asked then I constructed my signature fighting rod. I rushed to him then hit him in the face with it.

"Think about it while I get busy with breaking your face." I said kindly. I created a sign on my eyelids that helped me see his weak spots.

"Got you." I said then hit him on one of them. He started catching his breath then I noticed that my brothers managed to get to our battle. They had the mineral with them.

"Start putting it out there. Aurora and I can handle keeping him in." I said. Jeremy jumped and tackled Dregl's leg and my brothers starting to draw out the mighty symbol within our space. I dabbed my handed into my supply and it sunk in right away and converted to power. Dregl started slowly getting up then grabbed him by his face and power went off and he flew off then Aurora tackled him back to me then I kicked him. Eva and Nonny started firing grapple ropes and they wrapped his legs then they got powered up

"You used ancient power to stop me..." said Dregl. Bradley, Brian, Jeremy, Chris and I nodded at Dregl.

"Technically, no...wait...you are right." said Chris. I threw some of the mineral over into the sky to symbolize the end of the war. It was a custom. This had to be done.

"I told you that you should just give up." I said.

"You have not ended my cause." he commented. I just sighed.

"I didn't. My team did. Yes, our existence got proven by you and your mission but you wanted to get Foer and end all of us and that didn't happen because of us." I said. I stood in front of his face.

"You lost." I said then he was sent to the transportation vehicle meant to get to our base. I held Foer then I placed it in the advanced casing created for it.

"I love everything about Aurora." I said. My dad Lincorn and I hugged.

"What I did had to be done to protect our world." I said. My dad nodded a lot.

"Our privacy got compromised." I said.

"The fee paid to actually stop Dregl." he added.

"Not a price that had to be created. I messed up." I commented. My dad got up.

"No. You kept your promise." he said. I smiled that nodded.

"This starts the end but thanks to your team, BLUE started ending the end." he said. I turned to the casing then turned to my dad.

"BLUE can lead the charge." I said. He remained silent and smiled.

"No..." he said. My gauntlet bleeped once and it glowed blue then stopped.

"You have to lead us and stop the Enders." he said. I got promoted and it meant that my team and I had to start the mission that changed our world forever.

"Our best friends helped us get Foer." I said.

"Foer loved everything about his family." I said. Aurora and I held hands.

"Let's start our own." she said.
